The Times Of Our Minds

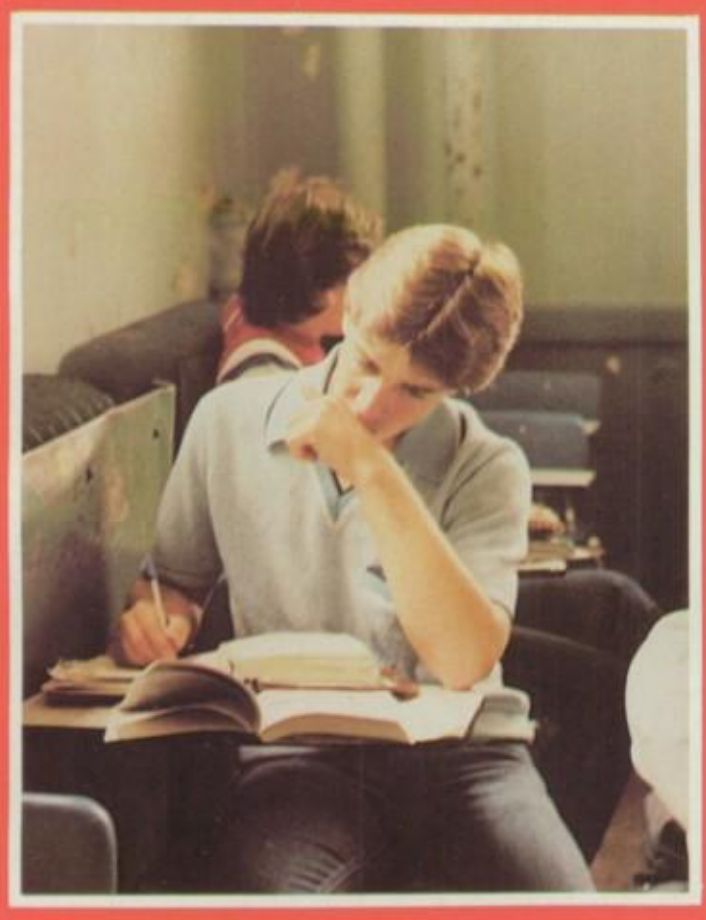
You are now holding our frame of mind in your hands.

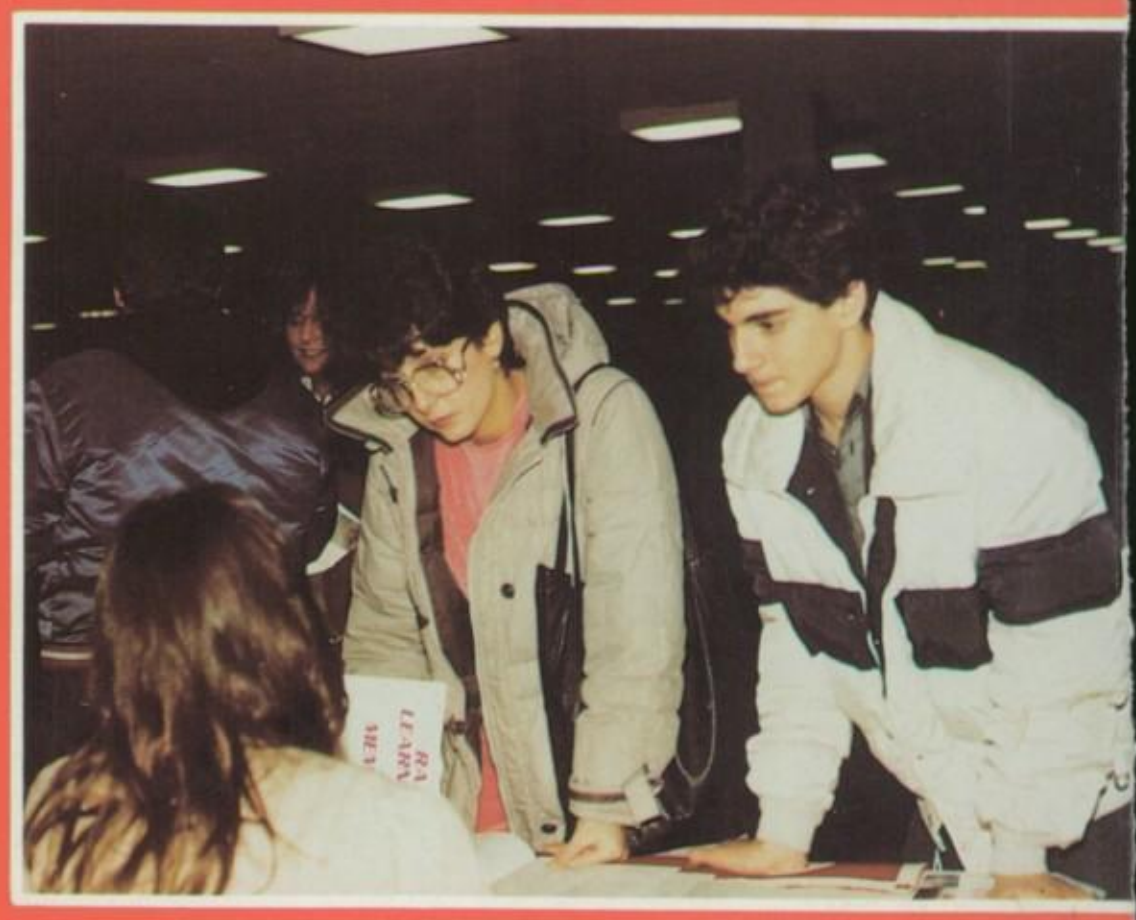
For the layman who picks up the dictionary to define high school, he will learn only that it is a school that usually includes grades 9-12. That definition might only suffice for the most insensitive, apathetic, and just about brain dead individual.

High school cannot be limited to a period of 3 or 4 years. It is a stretch of time we entered as little kids and left as almost big people. It's a span of years including big dreams, hopes, and at times, a thousand deaths.

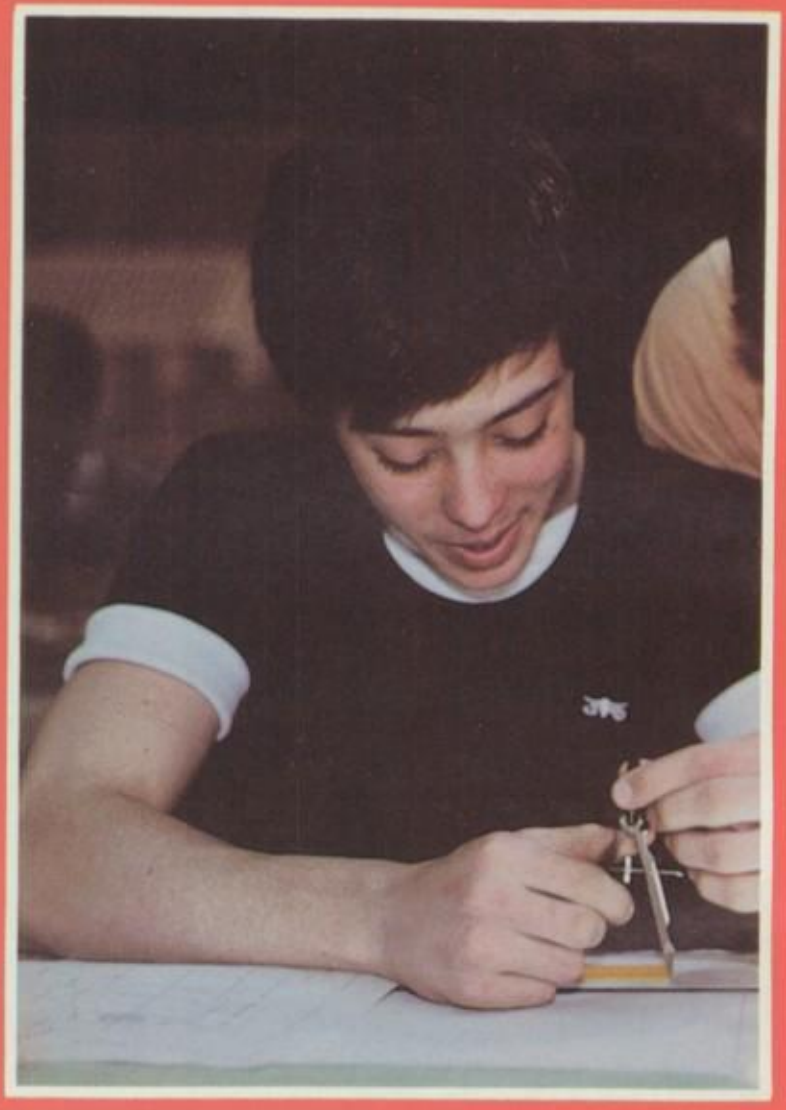
Mark Twain once said, "I have known many troubles, but most of them never came true." He might been thinking of his high school days when he said it. Almost every minute of the past 3 or 4 years have seemed to bring us to the abyss- at least in our minds.

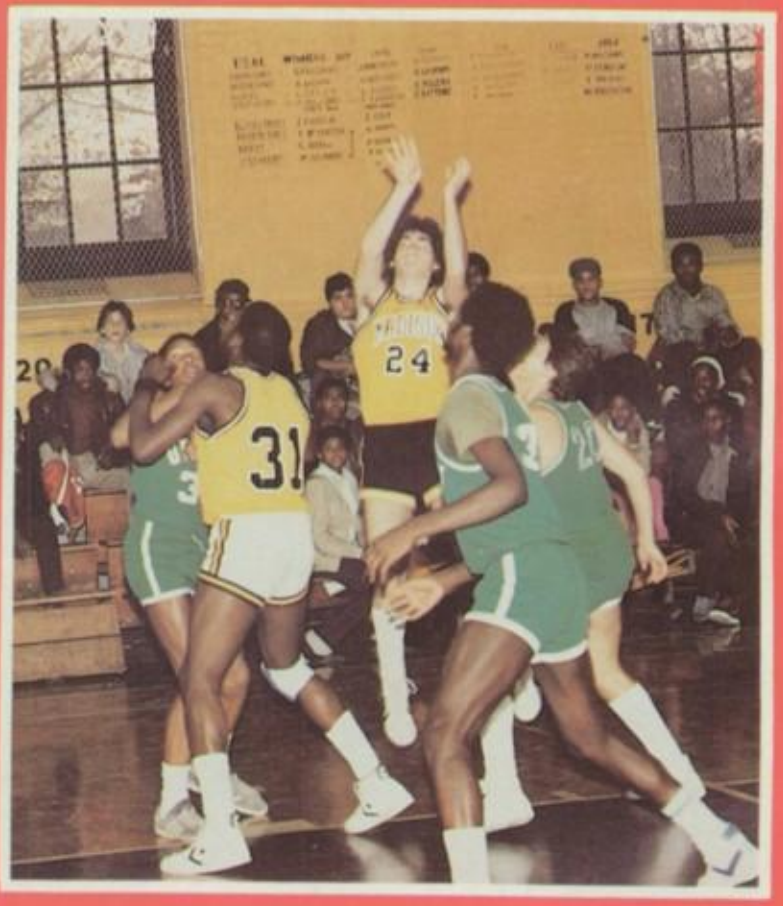
The next two hundred or so pages contain not only our times, but our thoughts as well. This is how we felt . . .





The Spirit At Madison High





Faculty-Page 50

The Madison faculty is composed of men and women truly devoted to the success of the student body.

Many factors dictate the directions we take in life. Certainly, the teachers we've had will always a positive influence on the decisions we make. At times, the workload seems overbearing, but the faculty of James Madison High School is always by our side.

As a whole and as individuals, the staff reaches that truly elusive plateau of firm and friendly in guiding us to our goals.

We are forever grateful for the guiding patience and devotion of the teachers. They will always be remembered.

"It's a lot tougher to be a football coach than a President. You've got four years as a President, and they guard you. A coach doesn't have anyone to protect him when things go wrong."

Activities-Page 66

James Madison High School offers its students a versatile plethora of pursuits outside the classroom.

Scholarship is always our first and most important task, yet, we realize the importance of a well rounded personality.

Students have the opportunity to join clubs ranging from journalism, as the school yearbook — The Log and newspaper — The Moment; intellectual groups, such as the Math Club, the Chess Club; religious groups, as the Akiva Club; ethnic groups, such as the Eastern Star; and just for fun clubs as Dungeons and Dragons.

We are fortunate to have the opportunity here, not only to pursue truths in the world academically, but to also enjoy the activities available to us in the world outside the classroom.

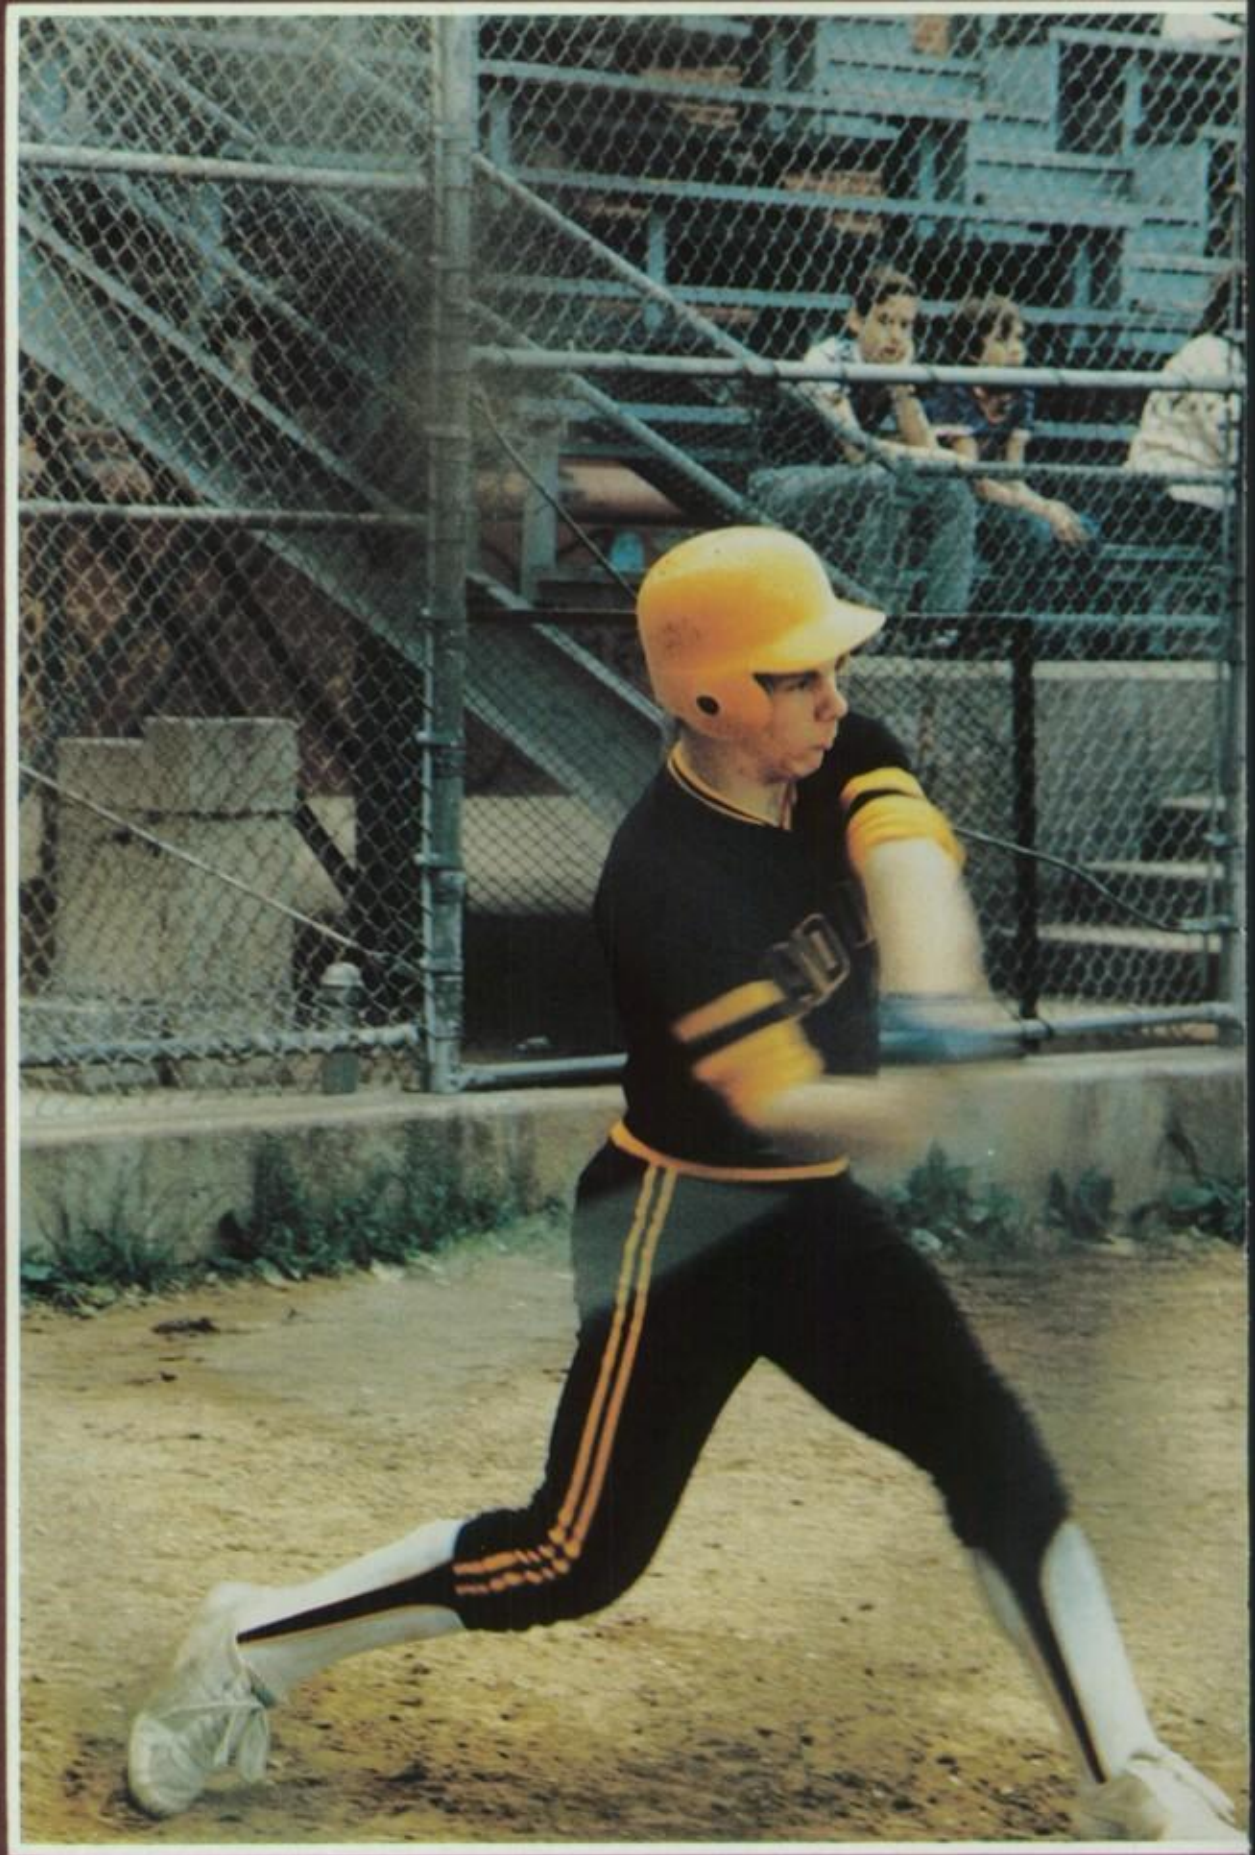
Edward Bulwer Lytton

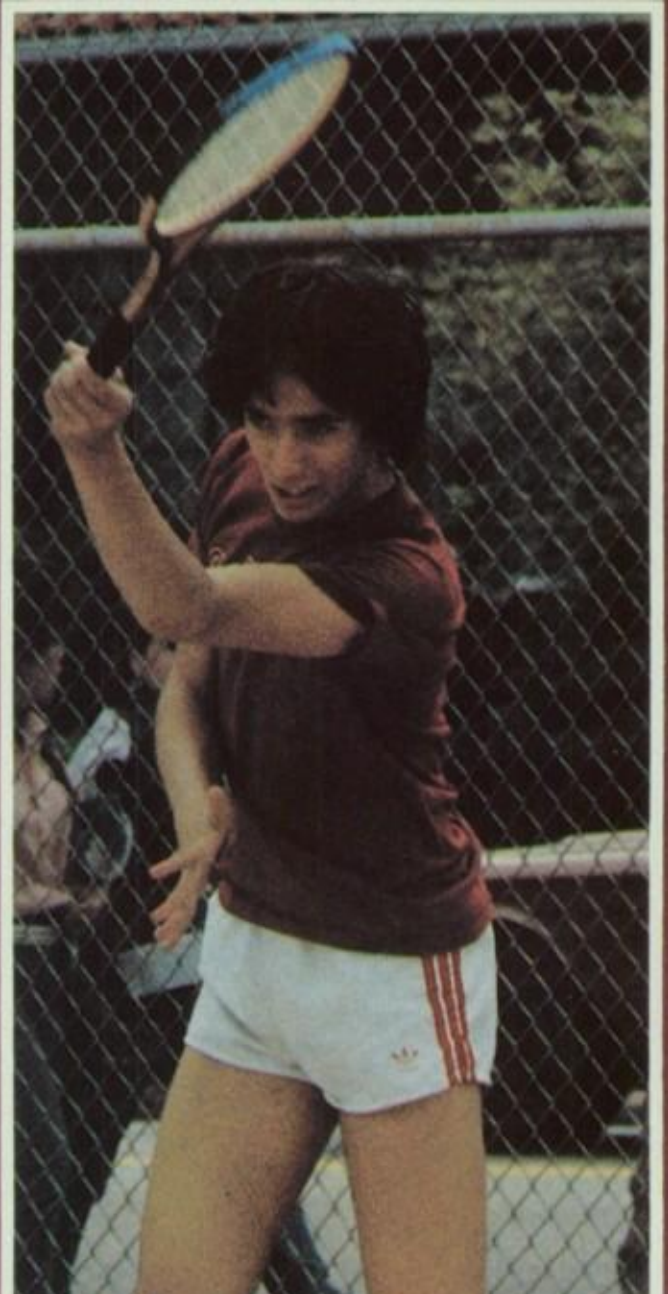
Sports - Page 100

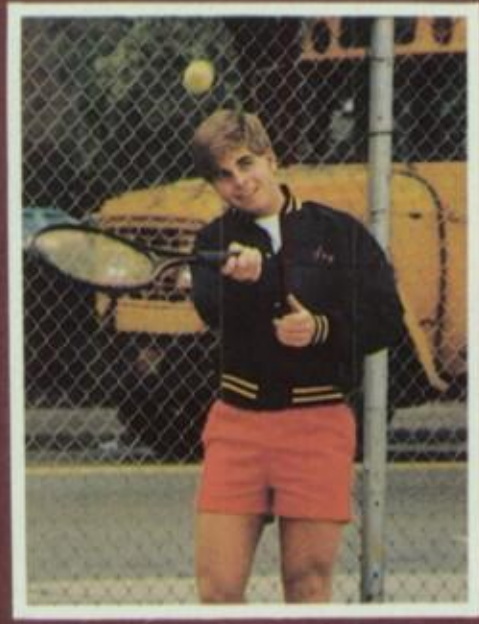
Competition in life is something you can never overcome. Sports is one part of competition that stays with us always. Whether watching, playing, or coaching, it's the excitement and spirit that attracts everyone.

All the time and painful practice that is endured isn't always for the participant, but for the team as a whole. While we are working together, struggling for victory, we show our pride. Accomplishment in sports doesn't necessarily mean victory in the game. You know what they say about "it's not whether you win or lose . . . "

No matter if it's going for the winning pass, strike, or goal, Madison's athletes and fans share the memorable and enjoyable experiences. If we put our all into whatever is important, then we have succeeded.







"If you watch a game, it's fun. If you play it, it's recreation. If you work at it, it's golf."
Bob Hope

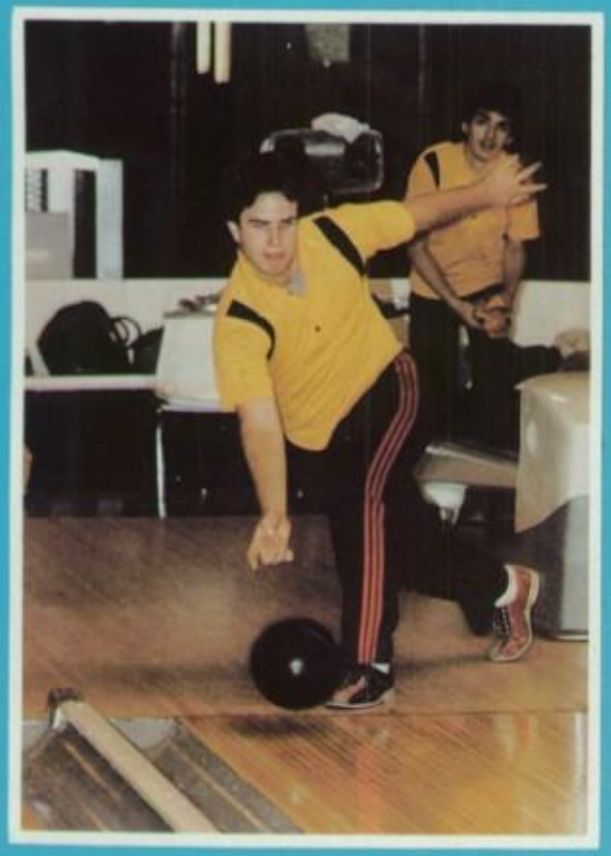
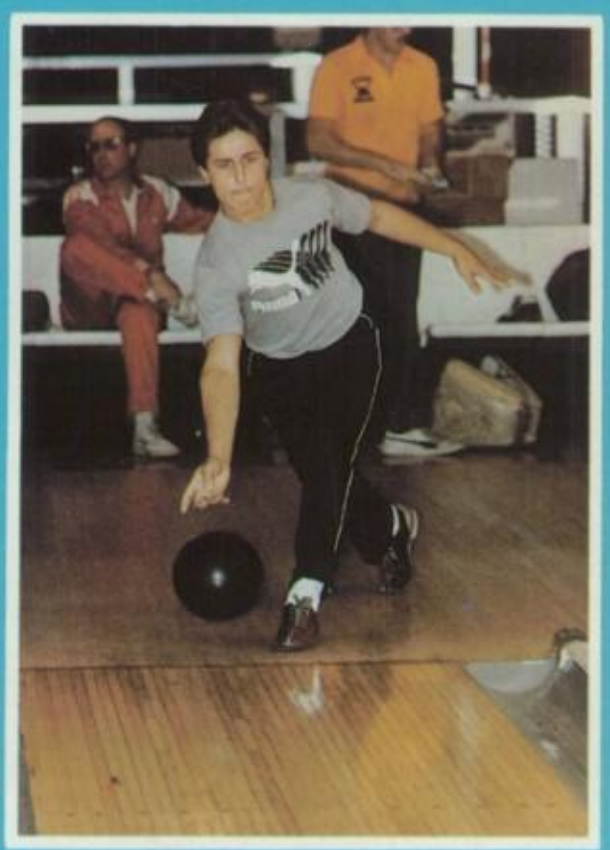
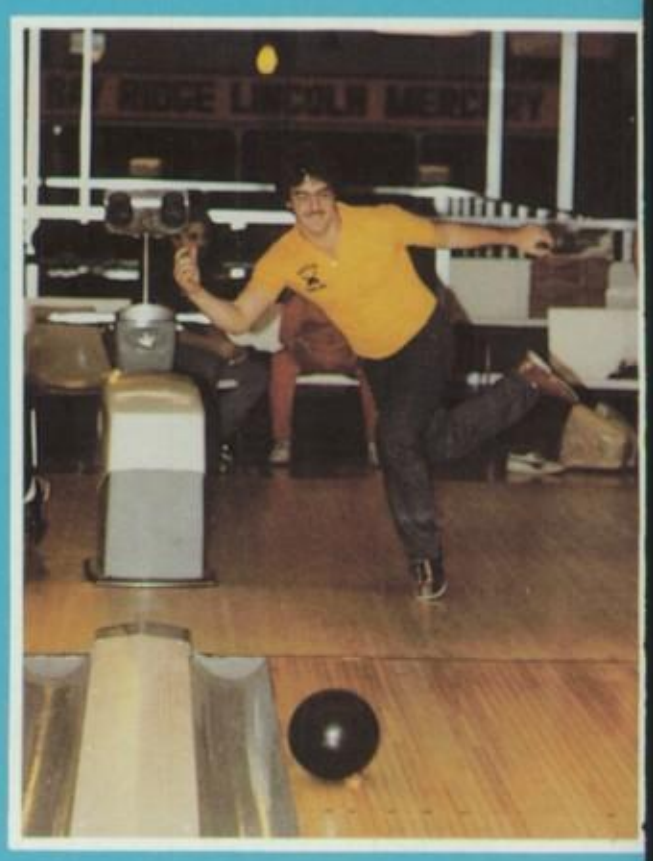
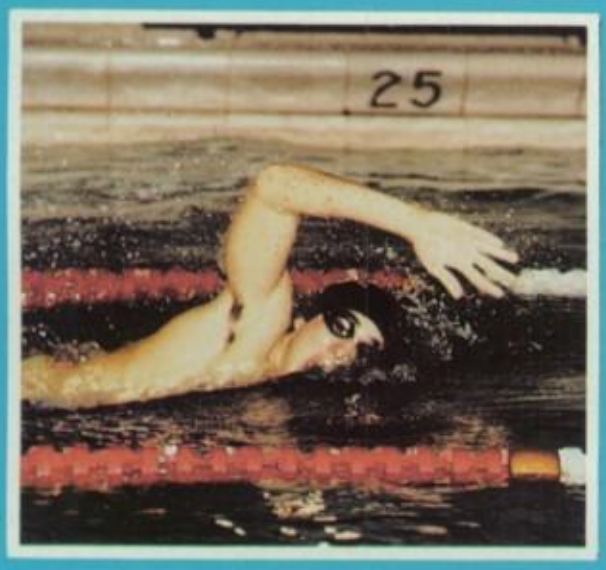
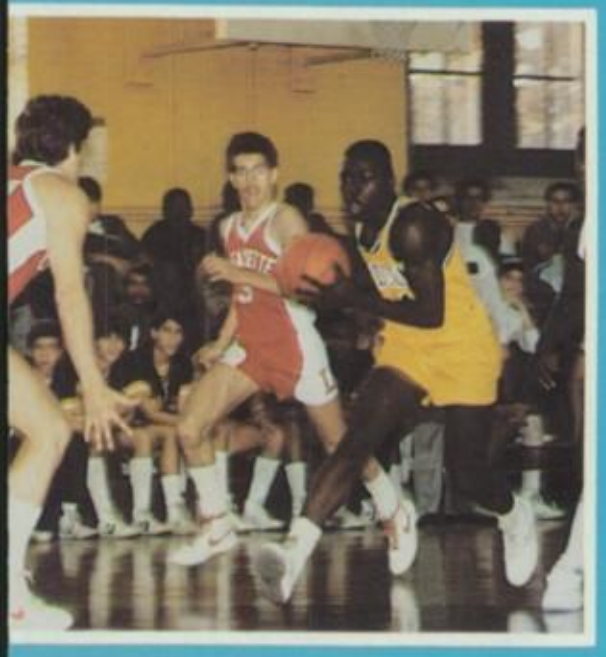
Michel De Montaigne

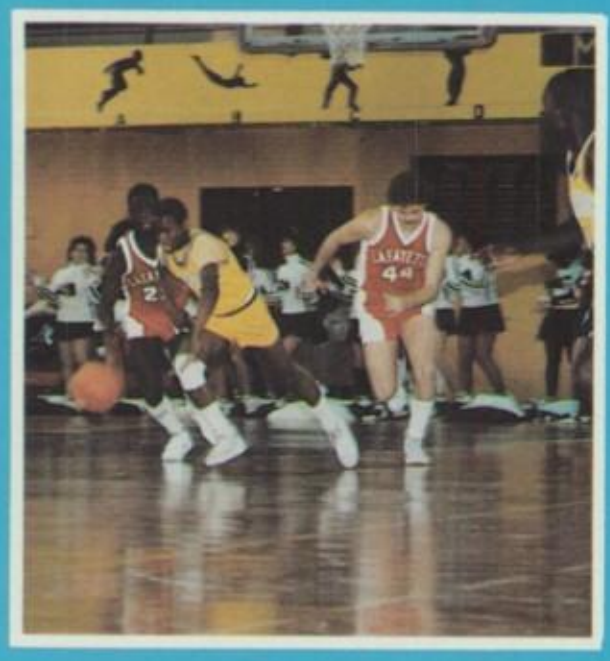












MADISON

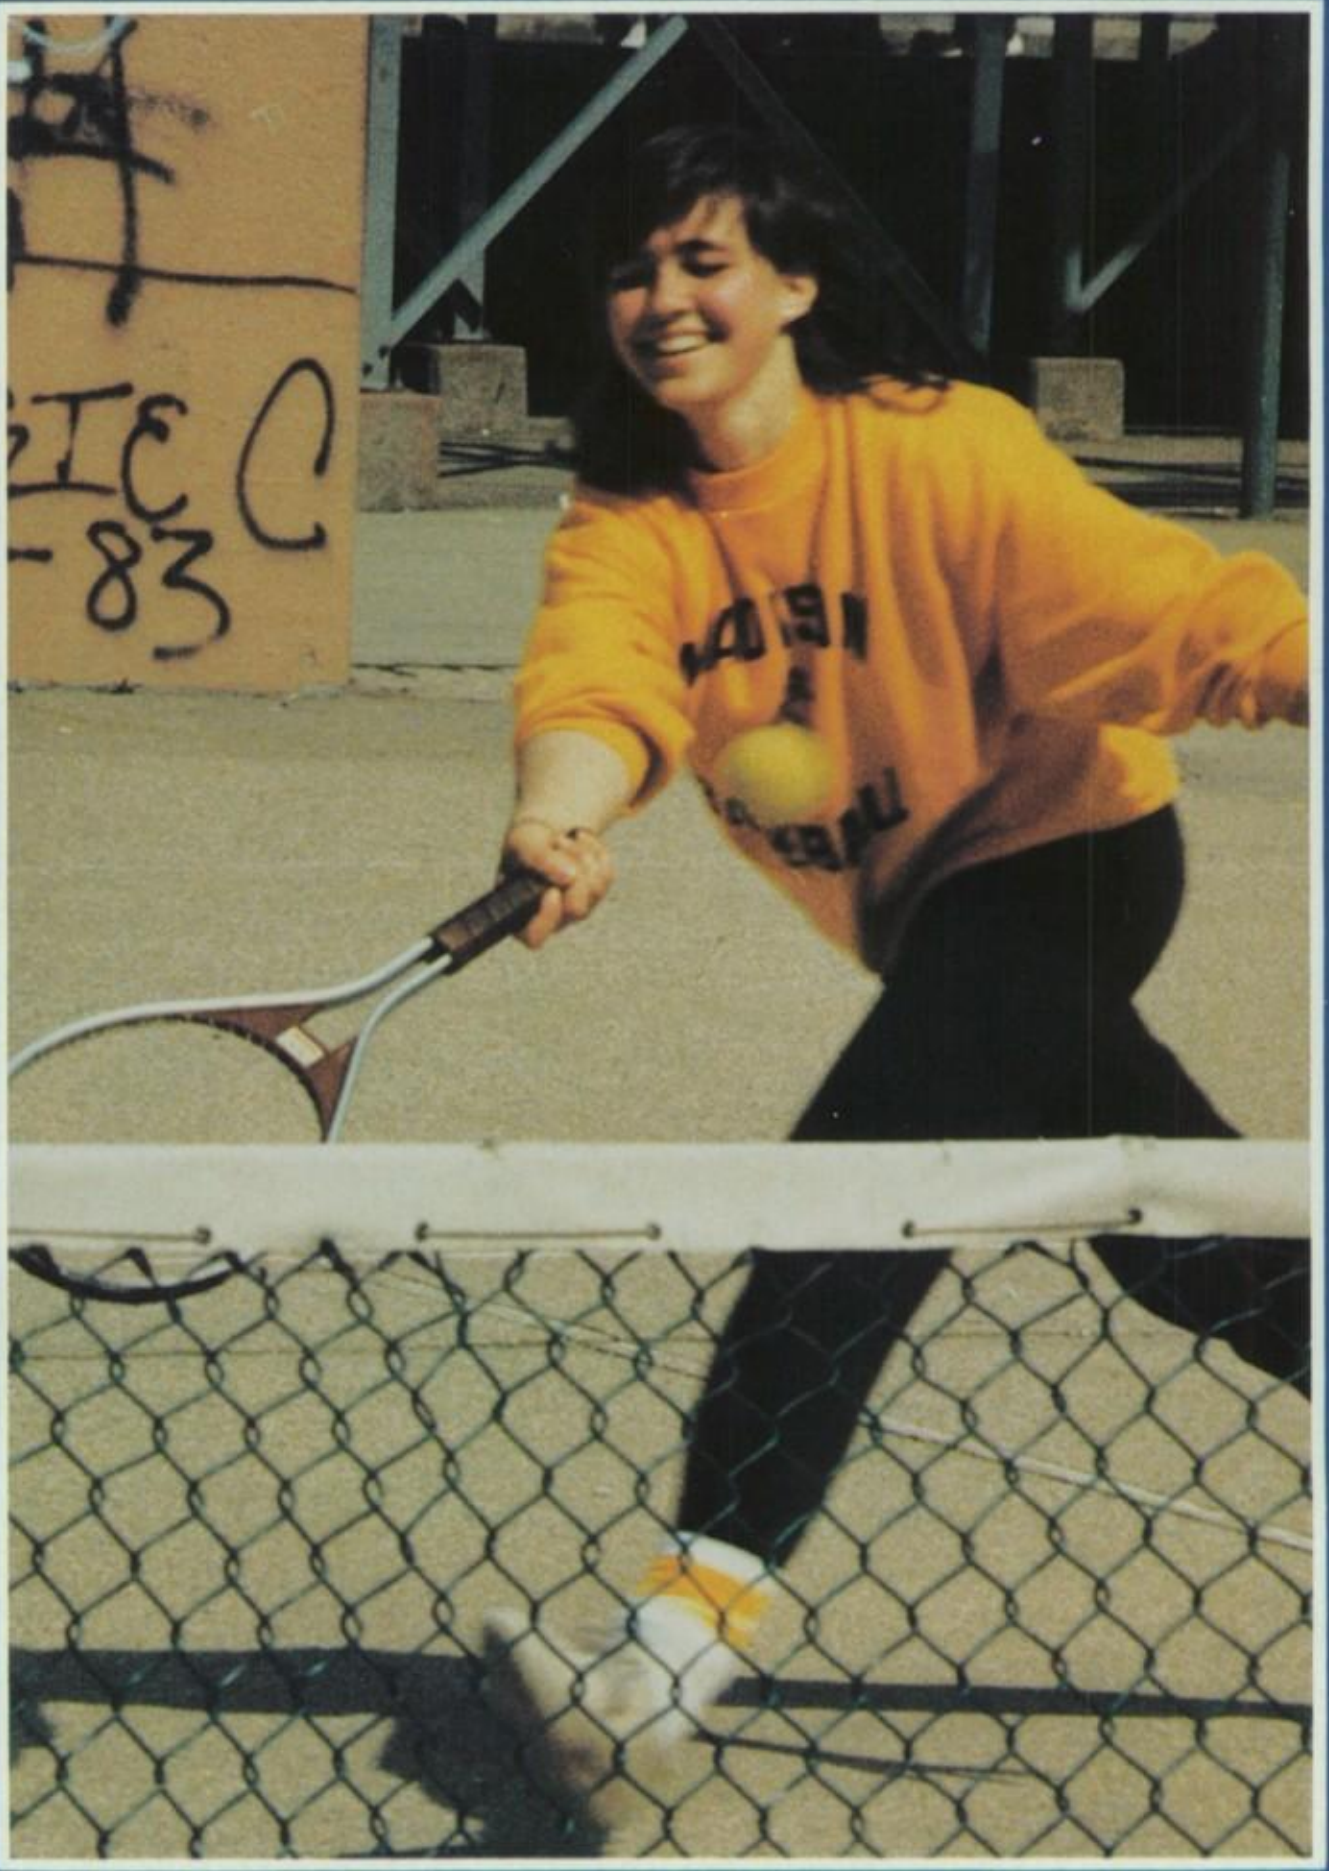
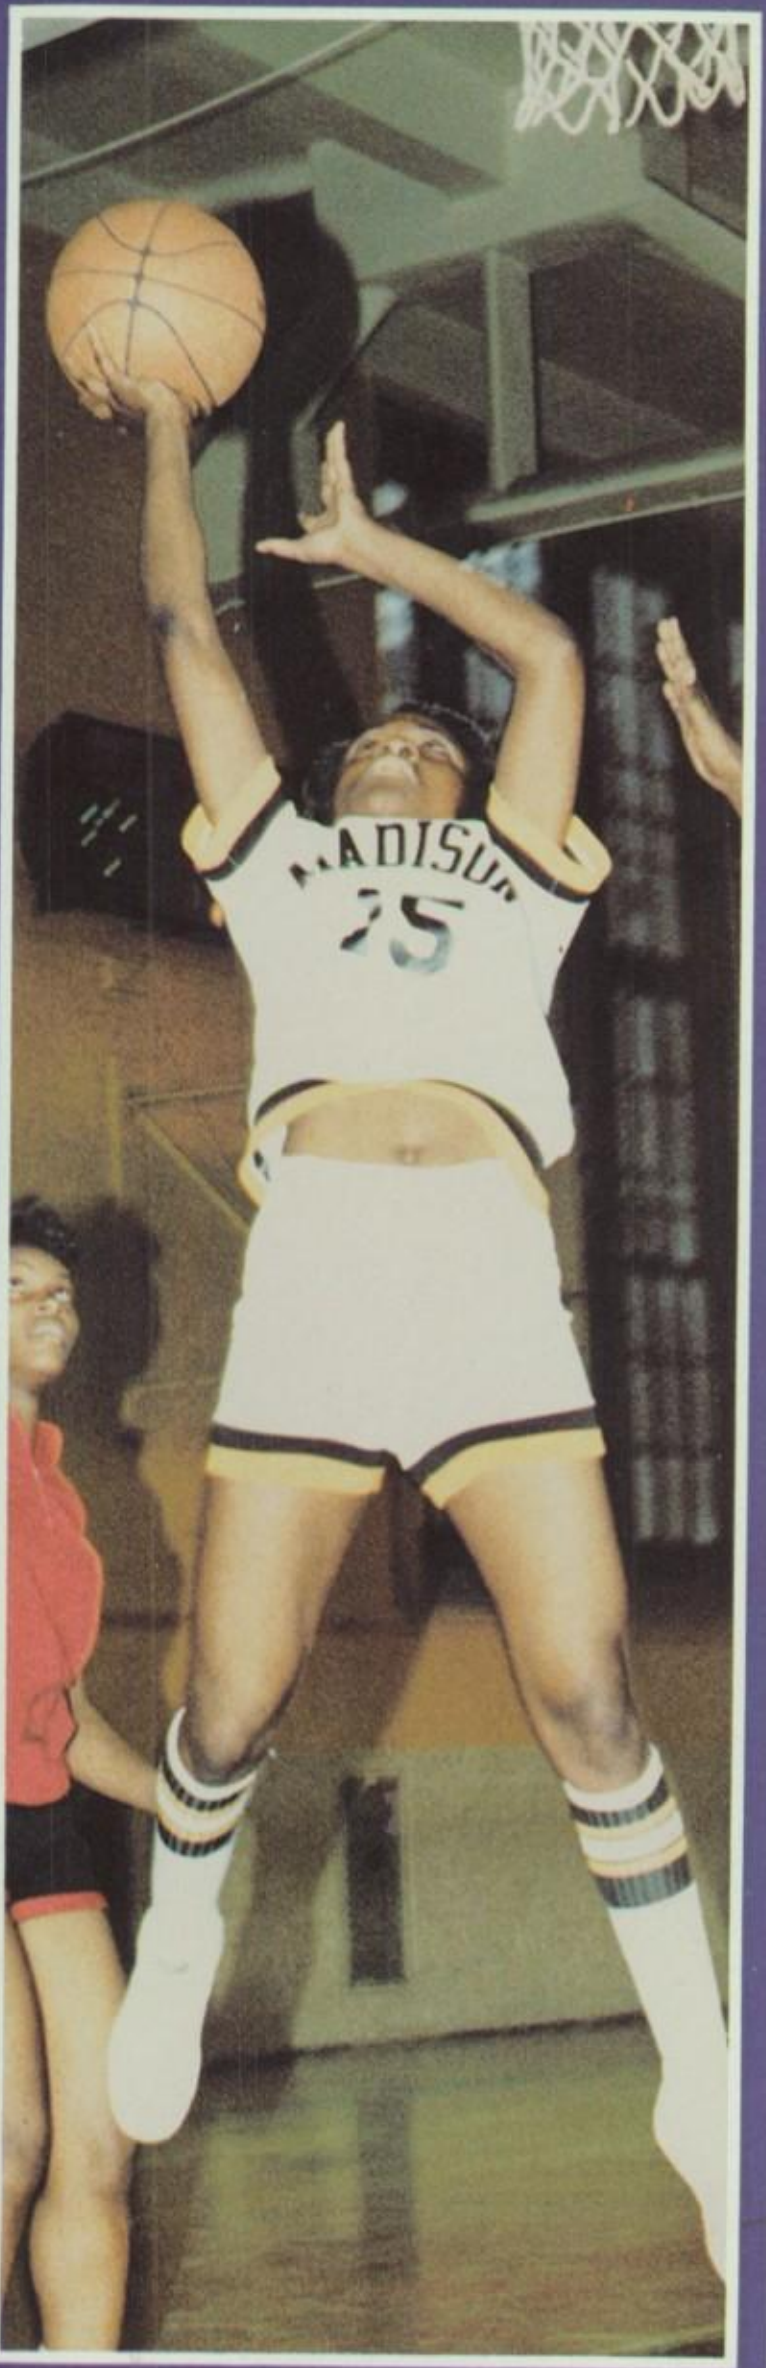
The girls at Madison have achieved a high level of success in the past. Virtually every team in the female division from our school has been of play-off caliber or better during the past few years.

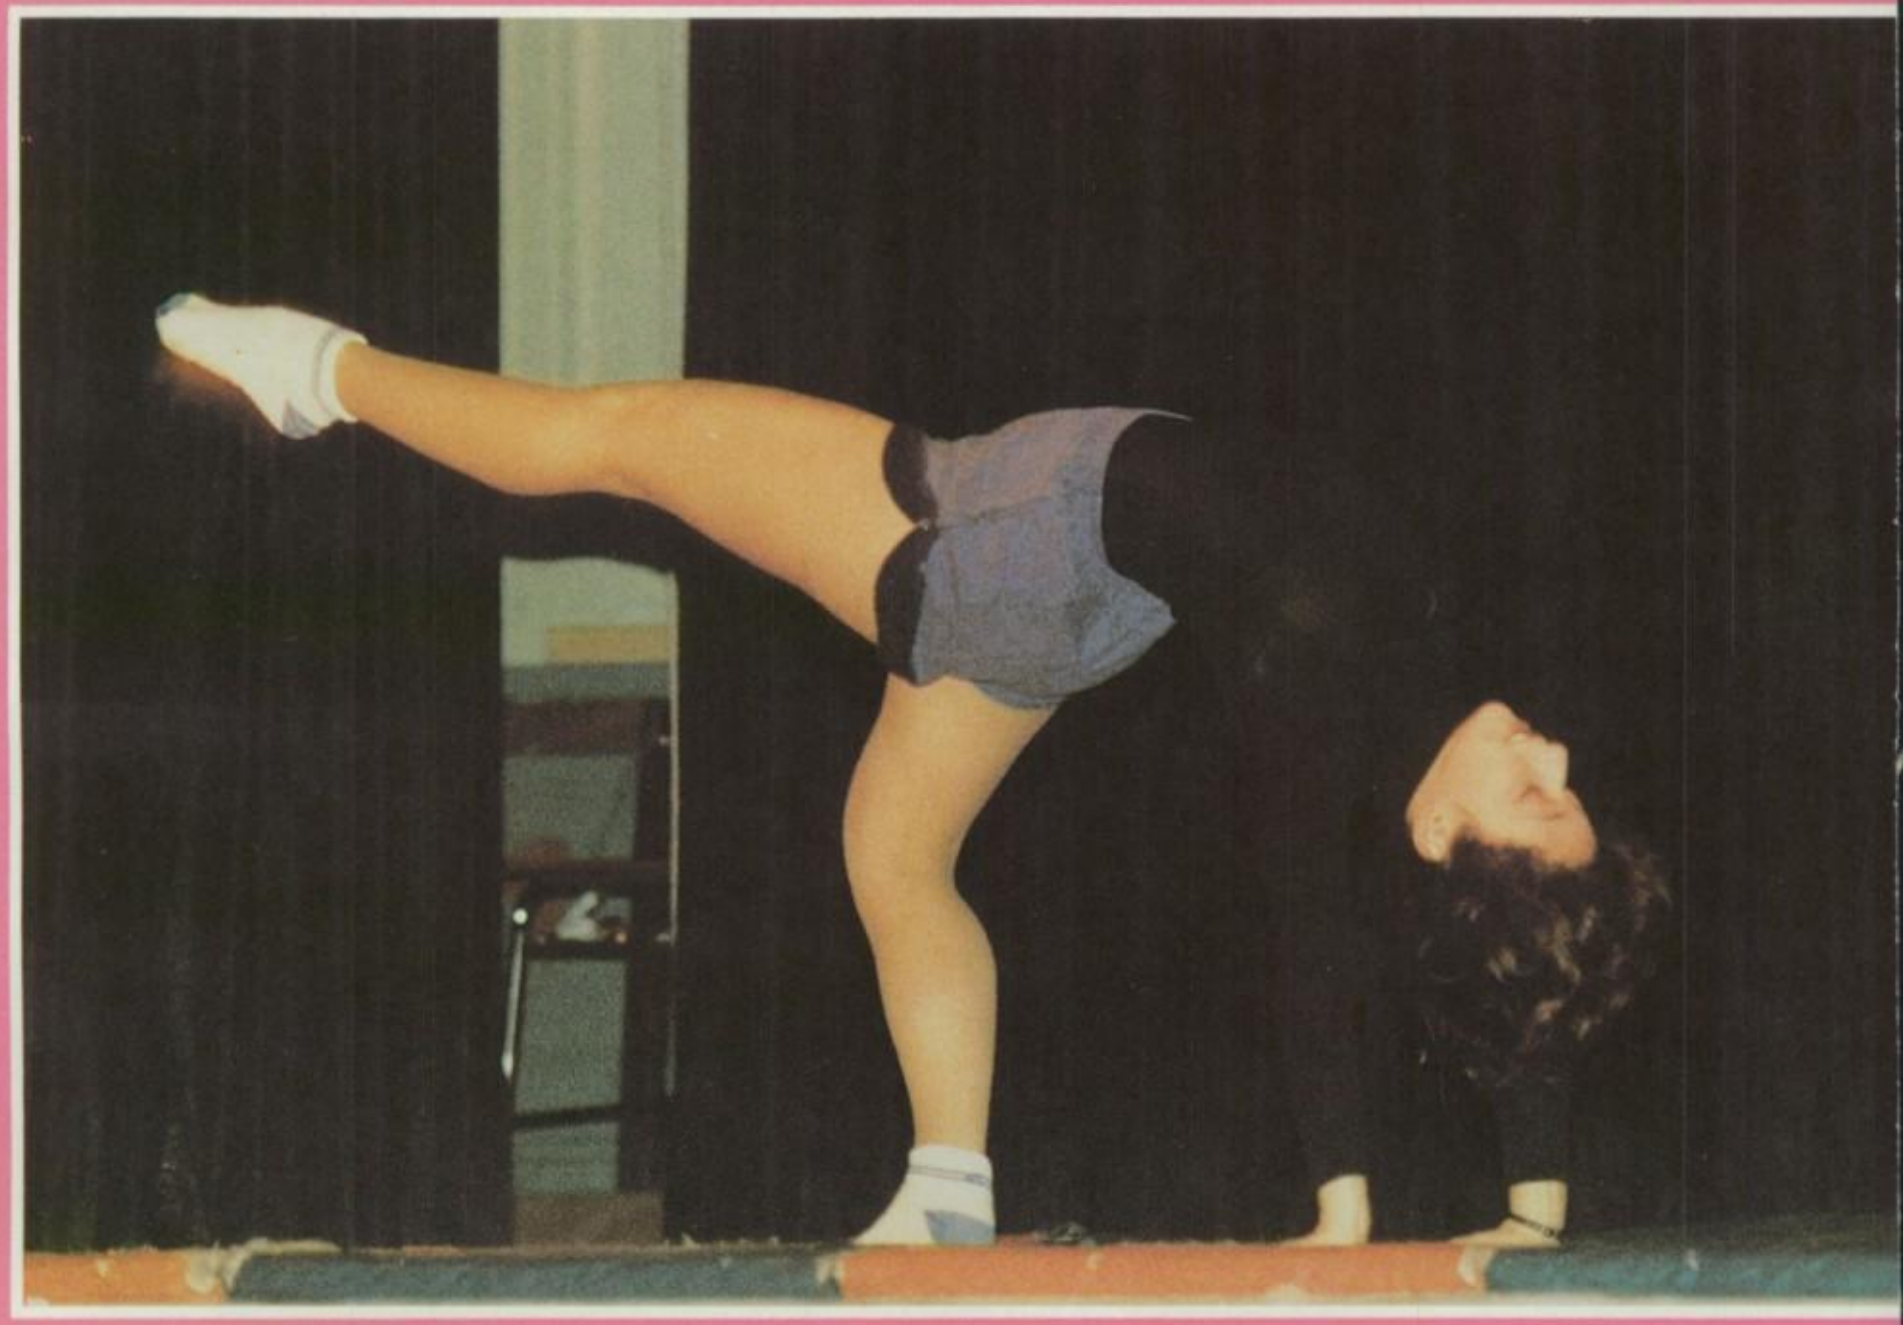
There are many factors prevalent leading to this victorious precedence. Teamwork ranks as one of the major reasons for our accomplishments in sports. There is a strong feeling of unity among the team members as the girls sacrifice individual goals for the good of the team.

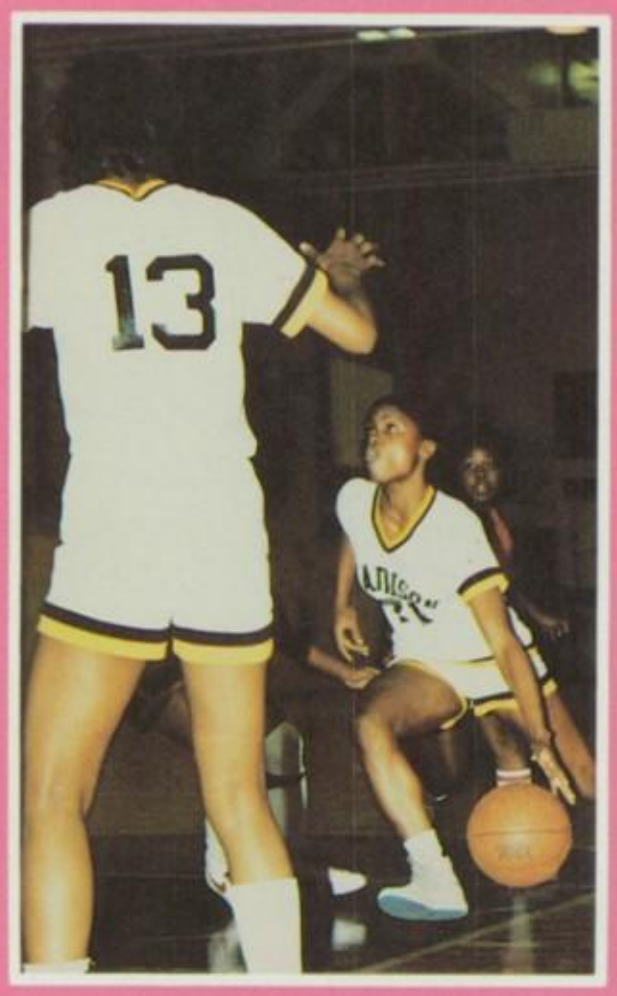
The girls are the beneficiaries of outstanding coaching of the Madison staff. The training procedure consists of all factors necessary for the girls to compete at a high level in their sports.

All team members grow as people in addition to as athletes.









"You done splendid."
Casey Stengel

Scholarship-Page 138

The optimum goal of every person connected with James Madison High School is to inspire each student to expand his mind to its fullest capacity.

Intellectually, the students are exposed to a vast body of knowledge. Some of the topics examined cover the fields of the physical and social sciences.

There are advanced placement courses in mathematics, biology, chemistry, history, and English for pupils whose academic achievements are in the upper echelon of the student body.

Arista is the group for students whose cumulative averages throughout the years are in the highest percentiles. The requirements to join this elite club is a 90 average for seniors, a 92 average for juniors, and a 94 average for sophomores.

In addition to achieving high marks, we are motivated to attack these challenging fields that lie before us.

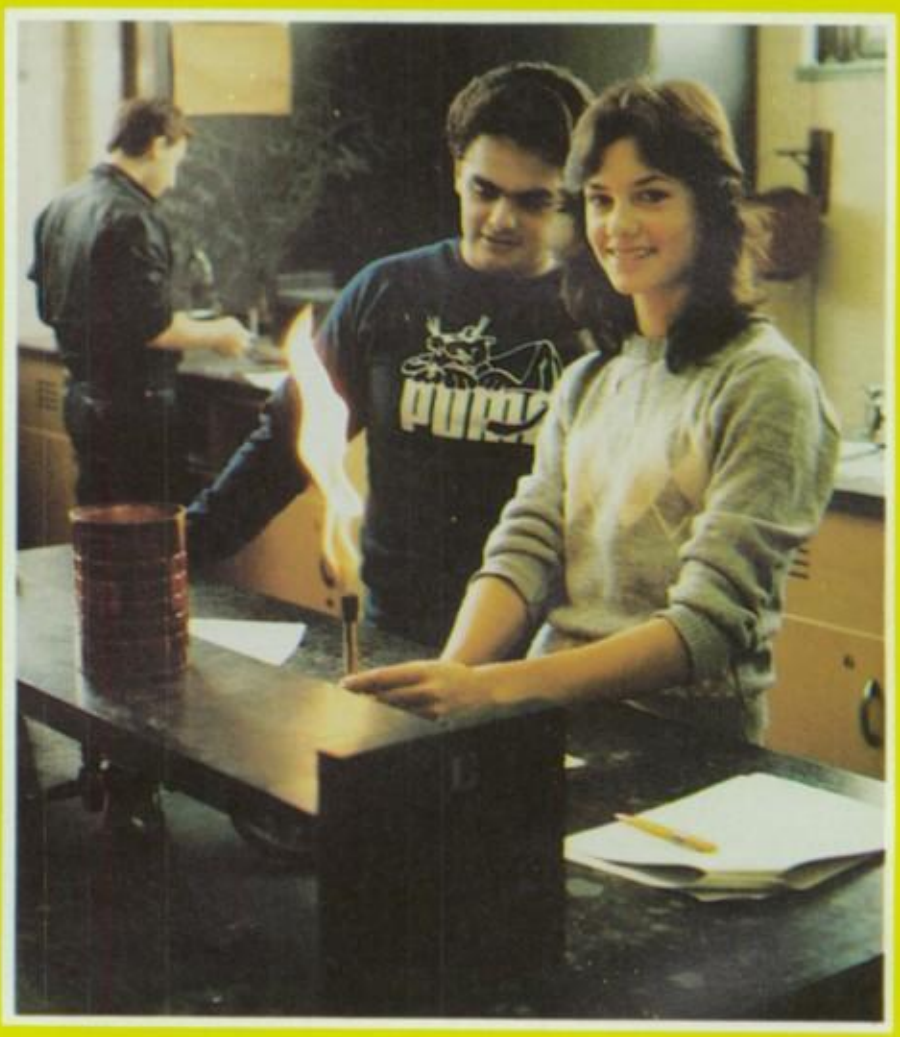
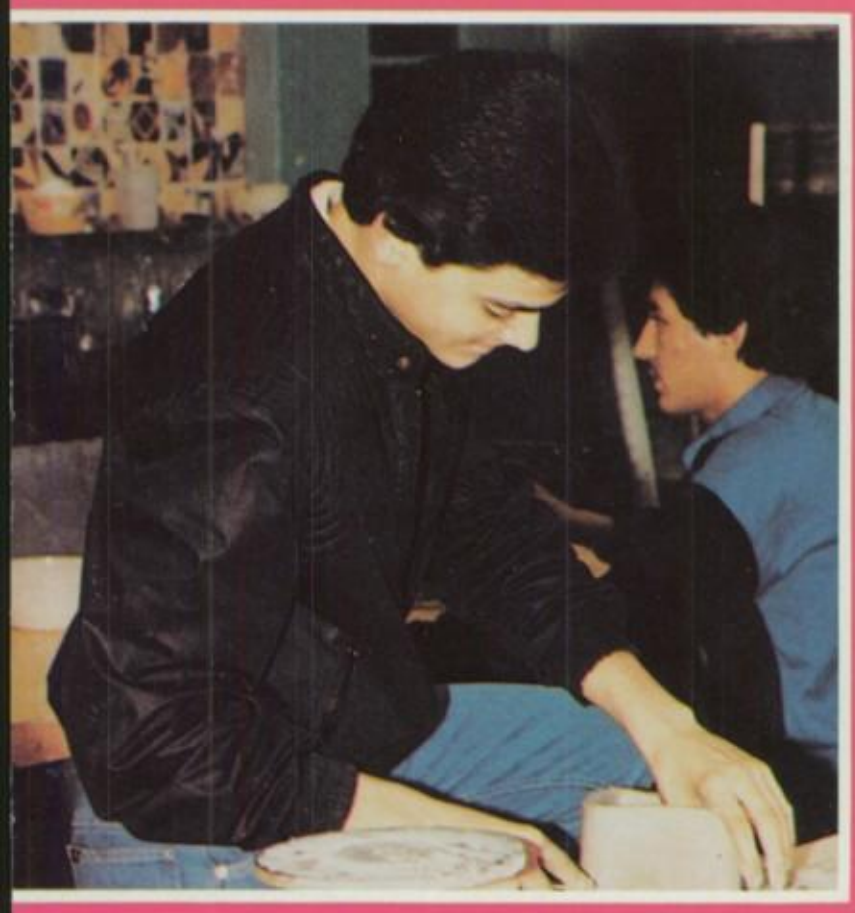
Stirling Moss



Is This The Way Michaelangelo Started?

James Madison High School is abundant with students possessing enormous artistic ability. Our Fine Arts program motivates students to expand their interests and use their creative talents in the various fields of art.

In addition to being an educational experience, fine art is also fun. The ceramic classes were in such demand this past year that more sections had to be created to accommodate the students.



"An artist cannot speak about his art any more than a plant can discuss horticulture."

Donald Trump — Look Out!

At James Madison High School, art is not relegated to the canvas. Students are engaged in challenging courses of Industrial Arts to create objects for immediate use.

Participants are intellectually challenged to determine the necessary materials needed for the project.

In one of Mr. James Ray's classes, students are examining car engines for possible reconstruction. Other department members Mr. Alan Solo, Mr. Jon Palmiotti, and Mr. Michael Hinden are also able craftmen who guide their pupils to the desired goal.

Four More Years

"Do you allow a double major in business and psychology?"

"Can I get financial aid?"

"Do the dorms have private bathrooms?"

These were some, if not the most, questions put forth to college representatives when they visited Madison on College Nite last November. The student body has achieved a high level of academic success and this event was a prime opportunity to determine which institution of higher learning best meets the needs of each individual.

Hat's Incredible!

What has green foam-rubber arches and bops? Too tough for you? Try this one- what has three tentacles (assorted colors, of course) and waves? Strike two. Last chance- what do Madison seniors wear every Halloween? Right- It's crazy hats!

Senior Hat Day at James Madison High School is a time when we can wear any time of hat-from derby to bonnet and everything in between. Though some may deny it, this is a day when part of our personality and identity comes out in our hats. However, no one refutes the fact that it's day when we could look silly and enjoy it, too.

We're united as one
We'll win this sing

(tune of "Somewhere Down the Road")

Last year we stood here for the first time.
We were young and so unsure.
We didn't know if we could get by.
We learned the ropes, and learned Sing's more than a show.
We saw that we could work as one-showed that we'd only just begun.

As Juniors we are sure of where we are, what lies ahead,
We know that we will all be friends.
As Juniors we can see in light of loving friends and memories, - It's a Junior Victory!
Together standing in the spotlight,
Confident of this one thing,
Each of us will soon reach a new height,
Achieve success by looking for happiness,
Then reach out for the ones you love,
Join hands and we can rise above.
As Juniors we can see in light of loving friends and memories, - It's a Junior Victory!

Madison Students Study Energy Science

James Madison High School recently embarked on involving itself in Energy Education. A one year course offered by the science department was developed to acquaint students with all aspects of energy science and technology, and the socio-economics and political impacts thereof. The aim of the program is two-fold: firstly, to give students the background necessary to understand and appreciate relevant energy science and technology processes and principles so that they may relate these to their every day lives. Secondly, to foster and develop students' interest in the fields which would lead to further college/technical school study and specialization and/or career alternatives in science and technology fields.

Students performing laboratory experiments for the purpose of understanding principles of why and how something works, and applying this knowledge to design a system incorporating this knowledge is useful for a multitude of future job situations. In the pictures on these pages we see the energy class doing an experiment with miniature solar concepts of different types of passive solar homes. The teacher, Mr. Baum, is seen assisting students in their activities.

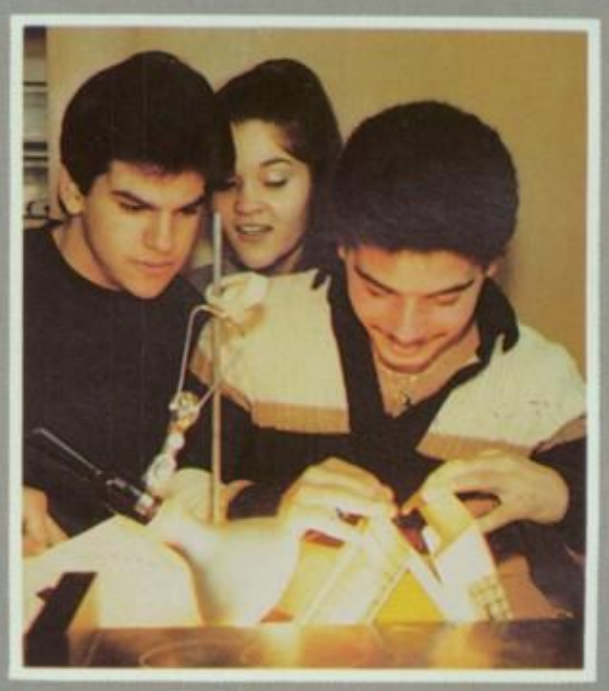
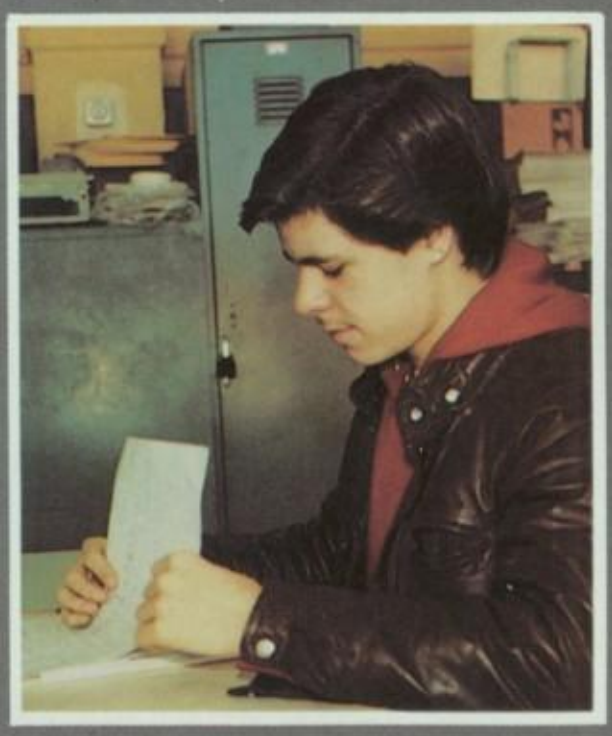
Activities in the energy class include learning to read and interpret diagrams, graphs, charts, tables and cartoons related to energy science and technology.

Favorable recognition is due Madison owing to the selection of energy project proposed by our students and selected for funding, development and exhibition by the New York State Energy office. In 1984-85, out of 100 statewide energy projects selected for the Student Energy Exposition in Albany, 4 projects involving a total of 7 students and 3 teachers from Madison were chosen.



Madison's Mini Is A Maxi Success



The Mini School is a program designed for the student who failed to achieve enough credits to graduate with their graduating class. Each student has made a positive and constructive decision in their educational life by making a commitment to join and ultimately succeed in this program. Upon successful completion of a variety of courses in a year long program that stresses individual cooperation with a strong emphasis on guidance and involvement, the student takes the G.E.D. examination. If they pass this rather difficult test, they will be granted a high school equivalency diploma by New York State. The Mini School is an excellent second-chance for students who are willing to try to turn their lives around.

Dear Graduates:

It was about 200 years ago that one of America's greatest leaders summed up the importance of quality education. James Madison put it this way: "A well-instructed people alone can be permanently a free people." The message is the same today and will be tomorrow. There is absolutely no way our nation can be strong or can provide for its people in the best way possible if we do not properly educate our most valuable resource-our youth.

You have been provided with a quality education at James Madison High School. You have taken a diversified curriculum with a dedicated faculty, enabling you to make intelligent decisions and thereby serve as exemplary citizens.

During these past three years, I have had the pleasure of serving as the principal of James Madison High School, watching you grow and mature as you took a number of initiatives to insure that you will be our next generation of educated citizens. In these three years, we identified James Madison High School as a school for winners because we recognized your achievements and leadership potential. As you look back at your high school years, you can proudly look back as a class that enhanced our school's reputation for learning and decency, a reputation which you helped to shape with your successes, your behavior and your actions. In addition, you demonstrated the humanism to work with classmates of diverse backgrounds and abilities.

As the class of '85 you demonstrated your qualities in a number of impressive ways. You participated in law related education programs with your mentor, Cadwaler, Wickershan and Taft, you brought generations closer together as you met regularly with senior citizens groups through the CAM program, you developed science research projects that enabled many of you to enter the Westinghouse Science Talent Search for the first time in a decade and you accomplished a multitude of other achievements.

You are the class that met the challenge of taking more rigorous course offerings that will prepare you to take an active leadership role in the years to come. You are a class that can proudly boast of your many accomplishments.

As you leave us now, you take with you past accomplishments and glories. May they serve you well to build future achievements. May you be blessed with a life of success and with the ability to turn a setback into a success, for we are truly dependent on you to insure that we remain a nation of winners.

Sincerely,

Norman Fisher

Dear Seniors,

I have heard it said many times that "one spends some of the happiest days of his life at school." At first, this does appear to be a rash statement.

Looking back over the last four years, your recollection of school is quite different. You have had a variation of courses which included math, social studies, science, English, business, art, music, gym -- reading compositions, term projects, memorization, exams, etc. Does this all add up to spending the happiest days of your life at school? Not at the moment; it's been all work.

You will no doubt have a great deal of anxiety as you leave "Madison" and move on to the college of your choice. What career will you pursue? Will you be successful? The knowledge you have stored in your four years at high school will be an aid to you as you continue your education, or enter the world of work.

You will take with you the rich memories of your Senior Log, Sing, the Senior Trip to Orlando, the Prom and last but not least, the June Graduation.

You may find yourself saying sometime in the future, "I have spent some of my happiest days at school."

My best wishes to all of you for a successful and happy future.

Sincerely,

Sylvia Jaffe

Parting Thoughts

Not only in Star Trek II do the needs of the many outweigh the needs of the few - or the one. And after you've discovered the difference between your wants and your needs, it might, and probably will, be necessary to suppress them for the good of the many.

Among the more prevalent needs, or is it wants, is to be accepted, and in some cases idolized, by the rest. So many times, a high school type will put so much effort into finding that special person, including going places and doing things with a hidden hope that this will be the time the connection is made. Many people are more concerned with the idea of having a girlfriend or a boyfriend than with the person being dated. Maybe that's why we see so many break up with a person one day and go steady with someone else the next.

It seems that some feel incomplete until they are part of a couple. Then, feeling like a "complete" person, some character aspects that weren't fully developed will surface and - WATCH OUT! I might not know too much about math, but do I know that just because there are two doesn't necessarily mean there are two ones.

Another time to "watch out" might be when a high school type gets in a position of power. So often an individual wants, it's sad if one needs, to be King of the Hill, or Leader of the Pack, or even Commander of the Spirit World. However, there must be leaders in order to maintain some semblance of structure. Frequently, it seems that the best leaders are the ones who you don't realize are in such a position. As for me, I've always admired the benevolent despot.

According to T.S. Elliot, in The Cocktail Party, "Most of the trouble in the world is caused by people wanting to be important." He could have been speaking about a high school frame of mind. Usually it's better to wait to be told you are needed instead of letting everyone know you are.

A great part of growing up is kissing certain dreams goodbye. Things that you once, or several times, hoped for might never materialize.

Yet, I still think everyone should be given a chance to temporarily escape. To be a legend not only in your own mind, but in everyone else's as well. Then comes another moment of decision. Which are the qualities that make a person the proverbial Saturday morning cartoon hero? I'm not certain anyone really knows what they are, as there doesn't seem to be a surplus of superstars around. Though one thing is obvious . . . Hulk alone does not a Hogan make.

ALMA MATER

Madison, we sing our praise to you.
We sing to Madison;
To you we will be true.
Mem'ries of days we lived within your walls
Tug at our hearts as we recall.

Madison, we hold your banner high.
O flag of Madison,
We're proud to see it fly.
Faithful to you, O flag of Black and Gold,
We sing our praise to you.

Yelena Yermak Receives Scholarship Awards

Yelena Yermak was an Honors Group winner in the Westinghouse Science Talent Search and Award.

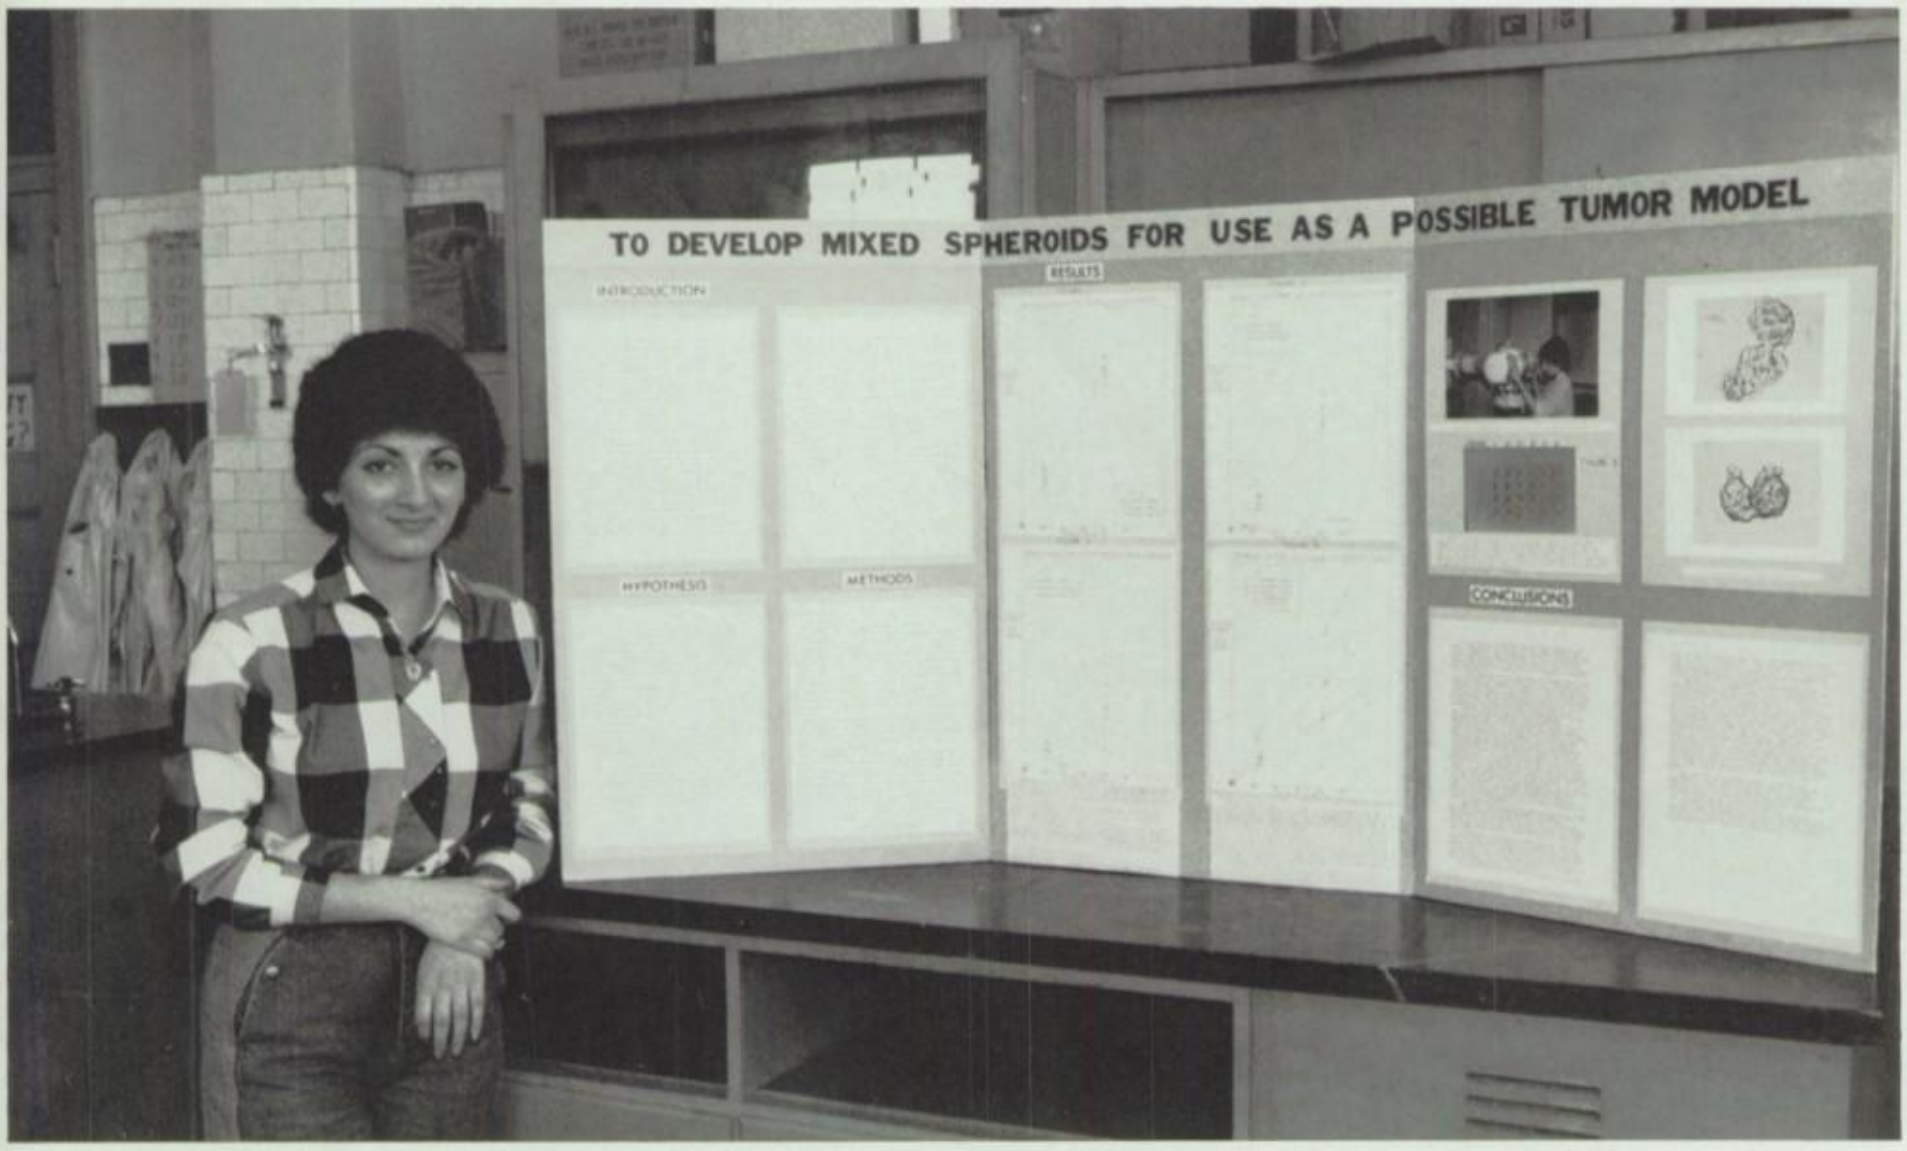
Yelena was chosen from over 300 students who were judged on the basis of 4 personal essays, SAT and schoo scores, and faculty recommendations.

Another award captured by Yelena was as a finalist in the Junior Science and Humanities Symposium, sponsored by St. John's University. In this competition, 30 papers were chosen from more than 200 New York City high schoo students.

In addition, Yelena also won second place in the Brooklyn Science Fair.

The following is a description of Yelena's project:

Eight subjects, over eleven successive sessions, reported on any fantasies that occurred during each fifteen second trial of a signal detection task. The trials were run and the responses were recorded using a computer program designed by the investigator. Results, at the 0.01 level of significance, supported the hypothesis that when individuals are subjected to a monotonous task, such as that of an air traffic controller or an assembly line worker their primary concerns will first be about the new task and the environment within which they work across successive days, their thoughts will drift away from the task towards their personal concerns.



Antoinette Cosentino won first prize in the Brooklyn Science fair. She was also selected as a finalist and, as a result, she will have her project on display at the IBM Gallery in the IBM building in New York City. In addition, Antoinette will represent Brooklyn in the Citywide Fair and if she wins, she will represent New York City in the National Fair at Shreveport, Louisiana.

On the basis of her written research report, Antoinette was selected as a semi-finalist in the Otto P. Burgdorf Annual Student Science Research Conference. The 15 finalists will present their papers for students and teachers at the Conference held at Hunter College.

The following is a description of Antoinette's proect:

A tumor model is a model which tests the effectiveness of chemicals and/or radiation to the control of tumor formation. An ideal model would be one which mimicks in vivo body conditions. Mixed spheriods, which are agglomerates of cells growing suspended in nutrient medium, may be such a model. Spheroids are more relevant to in vivo conditions yet they have the accuracy of in vitro methodology. A practicele application of spheroids is that cells from a person's biopsy may be incorporated into the spheroid and tests may be performed to determine an individual treatment for the patient. Several approaches towards the development of mixed spheroids were taken. Radiation and growth curve studies were performed. It was observed that mixed spheroids which contained the thymindine analog bromodeoxyuridine (BUDR) and were exposed for long periods of time to light were inhibited from forming colonies, possibly because of the death of cells due to light.

Log Staff Wins Best Cover Of Year Award

The 1984 Log Staff won the Daily News Award for the best yearbook cover of a New York City high school for books costing more than twenty dollars.

The cover (pictured below right) consisted of a student at an easel in a snow storm painting a graduation scene on the front lawn of Madison. The "painting" is actually a 20" x 24" photograph taken of four students on a sunny October Saturday. The staff then waited for a snowy day (which eventually came in January) and set up the enlargement on the easel to simulate the effect of the artist visualizing the scene in front of her.

Cheering Squads Win Awards

Madison Cheerleaders, Twirlers and Boosters won first place honors in an invitational cheering competition held Tuesday, Jan. 29 at South Shore H.S.

The girls won two first place trophies, one for overall cheering ability and one for best halftime. South Shore finished second and Midwood took third spot.

In the cheering competition each school's group was required to perform three cheers. The categories the girls were judged on included: voice, orginality, coordination, and difficulty.

For the halftime competition, Madison utilized the pop hit "Jump" as background music for their show.

The awards were especially significant for the cheering squads, as the adviser Leigh Byron, did not know about the meet until two days prior to its start. However, he wasn't too surprised with the results. "The girls know the cheers and halftime show to such a degree that they can perform at a moment's "notice", Mr. Byron said.

Alydar

Chestnut, 1975

To most racing fans, the name Alydar conjures up memories of a hard-driving yet perennial second-place finisher in an exciting Triple Crown Series several years ago ... However, the order at the wire wasn't the same with this year's edition ... The current model knows you can't judge a book by its cover, and I hope not a memory by a moment ... In many ways, she wasn't very far from a Ruffian - any track fan's, and The Arky P's, highest compliment.

Epilog

Most of us complain about our high school years, how we can't wait to leave and get on with our lives. But our lives would not be complete if we missed out on James Madison High School.

We consider the past four years the most fulfilling and exciting ones of our lives. For one reason or another, each of us has our own cherished moments, be it academic, athletic or social, the 1985 Log captures them all.

Putting this book together took more time and effort than both of us ever imagined. At times we felt it wasn't even worth it. But now as we watch everyone skimming through the pages and "remembering when . . . ", we are glad that we were a part of it. Seeing the excitement in your eyes brings tears to ours.

We feel that high school was the best part of our lives. Whether we're college or career bound, our experiences at Madison are partly responsible for the dreams that we will fulfill.

Years from now, when Madison is the last thing on our minds — we'll find this book. As we take it out from the corner of our closets and brush the dust off, slowly the memories will return. For every time we re-read this book, another treasured moment will come back. The setting has changed, the times have changed, but we will always know deep down, that our high school days were the best times of our lives.

Good-bye.

With fond memories,

Alicia Farria

Jill Simon

Acknowledgements

We always say, with a wink of an eye, that anyone who doesn't like the way we produce the Log is free to buy a yearbook from any other school. At the same time, we realize we have a type of monopoly on the Madison class of '85.

While one eye is winking, the other one is showing the inordinate amount of time, energy, and dedication needed to create the '85 Log. Describing the '85 Log as a yearbook is really a misnomer - just look at all the photos of this year's graduates as underclassmen. The process of producing this book began in the spring term of 1983 - when the key components of the '85 Log Staff (alias Jillie and Alydar) joined life in the Spirit World.

Many people, not directly considered part of the Log Staff, have assisted us during the past two and a half years of production. We wish to thank:

Principal Norman Fisher for creating the supportive environment needed to produce a book of this scope; Assistant Principal Murray Navon for extreme latitude and flexibility throughout the years; Assistant Principals Sheila Cohen and Lazzaro DiPietro for scheduling concessions; Bernice Sarria and Helen Simon for giving their time and skills to the Log. We also thank the Sarrias for allowing their home to be the Holiday Branch of the Spirit World; Joan Margulies, Dave Sommer, and John Palmiotti for cover to cover support; Sylvia Jaffe for a great three years as Senior Advisor; Bill Esner for loaning us a hard to find Sing Program; Steve Peretzman and Ray Caffiero for patience and assistance during the sweater - pleated skirt affair; Alan Benjamin for special considerations at exam time; Amy Stavis for loaning us back issues of the Moment and being a good sport regarding inter-office correspondence; and all the Faculty members for giving us much needed leeway, even though at times it meant we missed copying the aim.

Naturally, but not obviously, we wish to thank John Orlando, a man whose memory is carved in stone.

Steven H. Greenlick our Jostens Printing and Publishing representative has once again exceeded his own unmatched level of excellence. In addition to Steve's superiority in technical matters, he also a man admired by many, as several members of the Cheering Squad have shown a few pages earlier.

We were very glad to have the opportunity to work with Chris Jensen again, our Jostens Publications Consultant. Chris has all the makings of the perfect person - bright, witty, and she accepts collect phone calls from the Log Office at all hours.

Herb Halpern's Continental Studios continued to provide us with all the photographic materials and services needed to produce this book. The top quality of Continental's work is an integral factor in the photographic end of the Log. Two members of Herb's staff, Gladys Schnitzer and Helen McLiverty, contributed greatly to the production of this book. Throughout the years, these ladies go beyond the call of duty in providing endless service to the Log Staff. Though Continental's address changed during the past year, they are still located at the number one position in the Log Office.

As you prepare to turn the final page, we hope the previous 193 pages made you glad you bought the '85 Log. Hopefully, it will bring back memories, not only for the past school year, but for all the high school years of an entire class of graduates.

We like to think that's another reason the '85 Log is a class book.
